PRELIMINARY REVIEW INFORMATION

What is Preliminary Review? Preliminary Review is a fee-based service that provides applicants with an early analysis of how City codes, policies, and development review processes may apply to a prospective project. A Preliminary Review does not promise project approval, but it can help applicants address issues and prepare accurate plans so as to save time and reduce the potential for plan revisions during the formal review process.

What kinds of projects undertake Preliminary Review? See the table below for examples of the common projects that request Preliminary Review. While the Preliminary Review process is generally optional, all Signature Projects must submit for a Preliminary Review prior to submittal of a formal application.

Expiration of Preliminary Review feedback. The feedback and analyses generated during Preliminary Review are generally valid for six months. As regulations, development policies, and the built environment continually evolve, the information is considered expired after six months. It is, therefore, important for applicants to file for formal project reviews soon after the Preliminary Review is completed.

Can Preliminary Review substitute for a Development/Use Application? No. A Preliminary Review submittal does not constitute a formal development application with the City. You still must submit a complete development application, including environmental clearance and fees, in order for your project to be on file and considered a formal application with the City.
