Background:	San José community centers are vital assets that provide residents with a safe place during emergencies. When temperatures reach or exceed 97 degrees, the community centers serve as “cooling centers” and extend their hours.

All residents are encouraged to beat the heat at their local center during the current heat warning. While cooling down, residents can explore specialized programming at each site.

For regular updates, please visit www.sanjoseca.gov/prns or follow @sjparksandrec on Facebook and Twitter.

For additional cooling tips, visit the Santa Clara County website <https://www.sccgov.org/sites/phd/hi/phep/Pages/heat.aspx>.

To ensure access and maintain space for programming, all large belongings, such as bicycles should remain outside. Service dogs are allowed indoors.
