Compare the candidates for Mayor of San Jose:

Matt Mahan

A new leader with common sense solutions, focused on fresh ideas, accountability and results.

Matt Mahan wants to:

- Reduce homelessness by more supportive services for drug and alcohol addiction, and “Laura’s Law” for court-ordered mental health care for the severely mentally ill, many of whom are homeless
- Hold politicians accountable with zero pay raises for elected leaders and top officials without better service delivery and proof of results
- Improve public safety by fully staffing our police department, ending the “catch and release” of accused violent criminals, and not defunding the police or reducing neighborhood patrols

Matt Mahan is the common sense choice for a better San Jose

Cindy Chavez

First elected 24 years ago. San Jose’s problems have gotten worse under her failed leadership.

Cindy Chavez has:

- Backed failed solutions and wasteful plans that have caused homelessness to skyrocket

- Voted to use $76 million in COVID-19 funds on bonuses for county employees, including executives making several hundred thousand dollars annually and bureaucrats who did no front line work

- Pushed to release accused violent criminals back onto the streets as crime continues to rise

We can’t trust Cindy Chavez’s record of failure for San Jose
